I. INTRODUCTION

A. Why Do I Have To Sit Through This Boring Session On Digital Evidence At 8 A.M. Saturday Morning When I Am Admittedly Technologically Challenged Or It Is Of No Use To Me?

Today, we will make the case for why anyone who is involved in workplace investigations (i.e. attorney and non-attorney investigators, Company point persons, human resource, computer personnel, executive management, in-house and outside counsel) must not only acquire a basic understanding of digital data or the fancier term, electronically stored information ("ESI"), but also comply with their obligations in that role before, during and after a workplace investigation.

For the non-attorneys and recovered non-practicing attorneys (who vow never to litigate again), who conduct workplace investigations, gather information for outside investigators
